

What is the pledge?
What does the pledge involve?

A graduation rite of passage, involving graduating students in a computing field acknowledging intellectual and ethical responsibilities as they enter the computing profession.

Students take the Pledge as a graduation requirement and receive a certificate and a digital token as confirmation of their responsibilities as individuals in the computing profession. There are no grades or other responsibilities associated with the Pledge.

Membership is open to students who are participating in a computing related field at a Towson University institution.
